National School Breakfast Week – March 3-7

“School Breakfast: Fuel Your Imagination”

This year, National School Breakfast Week (NSBW) features characters from the 1971 movie “Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory.”

During the week, try to increase participation in breakfast. According to the Food Research and Action Center, children who eat breakfast at school perform better on standardized tests than those who skip breakfast or eat breakfast at home. Some ideas to consider are:

- participation awards
- breakfast in the classroom
- a writing contest about the importance of eating a nutritious breakfast
- a break after first period to have breakfast
- a grab-and-go breakfast that students can take with them.

Refer to <http://www.schoolnutrition.org> for additional information. Please notify your area supervisor of any ideas or events that you use during NSBW. We would really like to hear about your success!

Food-Safety Inspections

State agencies must collect information on the total number of food-safety inspections conducted in food-preparation and/or service areas in schools under their jurisdiction. The results for Missouri are:

Number of Schools

48	2 percent of schools reported no inspections
289	14 percent of schools had only one inspection
1455	69 percent of schools had two inspections
304	15 percent of schools had three or more inspections
0	0 percent of schools did not submit a report of inspections

School Food Services thanks all schools for reporting in a timely manner.

Missouri Schools Awarded for Breakfast Programs

School Strategies Bring Healthy Breakfast to More Children

Twelve schools in Missouri have been recognized for their innovative school breakfast programs. By providing breakfast in the classroom and offering breakfast at no charge, more than half of the students at Columbia Public School's West Boulevard Elementary enjoy school breakfast daily. The school's exceptional program has earned them first place in the St. Louis Dairy Council's Expanding Breakfast Awards, a $5,000 award.

Winnwood Elementary in North Kansas City School District won the Midwest Dairy Association's first place Expanding Breakfast Award totaling $5,000. Winnwood Elementary breakfast participation grew 30 percent upon onset of Breakfast in the Classroom. A teacher, Danielle Bentley comments "I can't imagine life before serving breakfast in the class. It reminds me of trying to imagine life without cell phones!"

The award program, funded by St. Louis District Dairy Council and Midwest Dairy Council, was launched in 2007 to call attention to the importance of alternate school breakfast. Offering breakfast outside of the cafeteria increases participation by providing service for children who arrive late or who prefer to socialize rather than eat, and by helping to remove the potential social stigma that the program is meant for low-income students.

By educating students on the importance of breakfast and involving them in menu development, Jefferson City Public School District has experienced a remarkable increase in breakfast participation. For their efforts, Thomas Jefferson Middle School earned the St. Louis Dairy Council's second place award of $2,000. Kickapoo High in Springfield School District won the Midwest Dairy Association's second place Expanding Breakfast Award also totaling $2,000. Kickapoo High School students have a new environment, U.B.U Lounge, with bright colored paints, music, positive message graphics, and a gather spot including a couch and chairs. During National School Breakfast Week, students celebrate as a professional chef prepares omelets.

The two third-place winners, awarded $1,000, were Freer Elementary in Windsor C-1 School District and Buckner Elementary in the Fort Osage School district, from St. Louis Dairy Council and Midwest Dairy Association, respectively. With creative breakfast promotions such as Breakfast and Books, Freer Elementary knows how to get students excited about breakfast. Buckner Elementary students enjoy winning prizes once a month while eating breakfast. The staff is also encouraged by the increase in test scores from the students who have started eating breakfast at school.

Six additional schools were named runner ups and received $500. The schools included Ridgewood Middle School and Antonia Elementary, both in Fox C-6 School District; Riverview Gardens High School in Riverview Gardens School District; Jefferson City High School in Jefferson City Public School District; Park Hill High School in Parkville School District; and Smith-Hale Middle School in Hickman Mills School District.

Summer School Child-Nutrition Programs

Local education agencies (LEAs) that operate summer school programs may extend the services of their school lunch and/or school breakfast programs to attending students.

If school sites restrict meal services to summer school students only, these sites must operate under the National School Lunch Program/School Breakfast Program (NSLP/SBP) regulations.

The Seamless Summer Option is operated under NSLP/SBP guidelines and is administered by DESE. These summer sites must be located in needy areas where 50 percent or more of the children qualify for free and reduced-price school meals. The sites may also be located in non-needy areas provided that at least 50 percent of the children enrolled at these sites qualify for free and reduced-price schools.

The Department of Health and Senior Services (DHSS) administers the Summer Food Service Program (SFSP). Site eligibility for SFSP is determined in the same way as for the Seamless Summer Option except that determinations are made by DHSS. Meals may also be served in non-needy areas provided that at least 50 percent of the children enrolled in a site's food program qualify for free or reduced-price school meals.

New for 2008: The lesser of comparison between actual costs and meals times rates has been eliminated, meaning that schools are guaranteed to receive a higher rate of reimbursement in the SFSP than in the Seamless Summer Option. Schools that have participated in the Seamless Summer Option in the past may complete a user-friendly online application with DHSS for SFSP. Claims for reimbursement should be submitted online as well. Look for more information soon in your mailbox, or call DHSS at (888) 435-1464.

Many children are at nutritional risk when they do not have access to school meals. Missouri schools have three options available to feed children during the summer.

Daily Participation Record (Logs)

Federal regulations require that LEAs examine lunch counts submitted by individual schools to determine if the counts are accurate. These examinations must be completed before the submission of monthly claims for reimbursement to the State Agency. Data to be used in performing the required edit checks of individual school lunch counts should include:

- enrollment in the participating schools.
- Average Daily Attendance (ADA) in the participating schools.
- School Attendance Factor (ADA divided by enrollment).
- number of days meal served.
- number of children eligible/approved for full-price meals, reduced-price meals and free meals. (Use the highest number approved in each category during the month. The number eligible for full-price meals = enrollment minus the number approved for reduced-price and free meals.)

The Daily Participation Record can be found at <http://dese.mo.gov/divadm/food> under Most Requested Forms.
