| 7.RL.1.A | Draw conclusions, infer and analyze by citing several pieces of textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as inferences drawn from the text. | Draw Conclusions vs. Infer
As presented in the expectations listed, to infer means to use inferential thinking to
1. make logical assumptions about information not directly stated in text;
2. draw logical conclusions supported by textual evidence;
3. make logical predictions based on the textual evidence.

The relationship between “infer” and “draw a conclusion” is often confused. One has to use inferencing (inferential thinking) to draw a conclusion. One reason for the confusion between the two terms may be the lack of understanding that inferencing occurs at varied degrees of difficulty.

Difficult inferences may occur for any of the following reasons: supporting | Draw Conclusions vs. Infer
After reading a story about a high school football player, students were asked the following question: Was Joe injured in the football game? Yes or no? Because the text never directly states that Joe was injured, the students have to use evidence from the text as a basis to infer either “yes” or “no.”

After reading an article that describes unique adaptations made by living organisms to survive adverse conditions, students were asked to tell the central idea of the article. Because the central idea is not directly stated, students had to consider evidence presented throughout the article and use inferential thinking to arrive at a logical conclusion about the central idea. | evidence presented within the text is limited, the ideas are not presented in a straightforward manner or all or multiple portions of the text have to be considered to arrive at a logical assumption.

Less difficult inferences may occur for any of the following reasons: there is ample supporting evidence present within the text, the ideas are presented in a literal and straightforward manner or a small portion of text has to be considered to arrive at a logical assumption.

Citing Textual Evidence
Students quote, paraphrase, summarize and/or make brief reference to information from texts/source materials to support their thinking, ideas or answers. When forming answers, students should provide attribution or make reference to the text/source from which the supporting evidence was found. (Citing, as used in the expectation, does not refer to formal parenthetical documentation.)

After reading an article about various problems with landfills and descriptions of solutions that have proven unsuccessful, students were given a choice between making a prediction as to what might happen if a solution is not found or describing a logical next stop or solution. In either case, the student must use inferential thinking and evidence throughout the article to arrive at a logical response (draw a conclusion).

Citing Textual Evidence
Student response citing textual evidence: I think the theme of the story is life doesn’t always turn out as expected. The author conveys this theme in the third paragraph when he describes how surprised John was when he lost the tournament. Additionally, in the concluding paragraph, the author makes the statement that life sometimes has unexpected twists and turns.

Comprehend and Interpret Texts (Approaching Texts as a Reader): Text Features

7.RL.1.C
Interpret visual elements of a text and draw conclusions from them (when applicable).

Visual Elements of a Text
Visual elements such as illustrations, graphs/charts, maps, photos, clip art, etc. are used by authors to help clarify ideas, allow the reader to follow the argument, share information or provide data. In some texts, visual elements present information that is not found elsewhere in the text and must be carefully analyzed in order to gain full understanding of the text as a whole.

Visual Elements of a Text
Literary text example: A graphic novel, such as Maus by Art Spiegelman, utilizes both written language and drawings (visual elements) to communicate its message and develop character.

Comprehend and Interpret Texts (Approaching Texts as a Reader): Summarize/Theme

7.RL.1.D
Using appropriate text, determine the theme(s) of a text and explain the relationship between the theme(s) and supporting evidence; summarize the text distinct from personal opinions.
Analyze Craft and Structure (Approaching Texts as a Writer): Structure

| 7.RL.2.A | Analyze how a text’s form or overall structure contributes to meaning. | Text’s Form/Structure
The internal organization of literary or informational texts.
Literary texts typically have literary elements such as characters, setting, problem/solution and plot that are organized to allow the series of events to unfold in a dramatic way. Events may unfold in sequence, or events may be presented out of order via the use of flashbacks or visionary experiences. | Text’s Form/Structure
Literary text example: John Steinbeck’s The Grapes of Wrath employs a structure in which narrative and descriptive chapters alternate, the descriptive chapters providing context for the narrative of the Joad family. |

Analyze Craft and Structure (Approaching Texts as a Writer): Point of View

| 7.RL.2.B | Analyze how an author develops and contrasts the points of view of different characters or narrators in a text. | Point of View (as Perspective)
Note: Missouri testing precedent shows that the term point of view is used synonymously with the term perspective.
In literary text, point of view/perspective is how the narrator perceives what is happening in the story. | Point of View (as Perspective)
Literary text example: In To Kill a Mockingbird, the point of view/perspective of Scout (the narrator) is that of a naïve child who is troubled by the attitudes and actions of many of the adults who inhabit the small Alabama town of Maycomb. |

Analyze Craft and Structure (Approaching Texts as a Writer): Interaction and Meaning

| 7.RL.2.D | Analyze how the setting, characters and plot of a text affect each other and contribute to meaning. |

Synthesize Ideas from Multiple Texts (Approaching Texts as a Researcher): Text in Forms

| 7.RL.3.A | Compare and contrast a written story, drama or poem to its audio, filmed, staged or multimedia version, analyzing how the techniques unique to each medium contribute to meaning. |
| Techniques Unique to Each Medium | Novelists, poets, journalists, filmmakers, musicians, etc. use the techniques at their disposal to convey their message. |
| Students reading Anne Frank’s The Diary of a Young Girl could compare and contrast the mood created by her narration with the mood created by the musical score in the movie version of her story. |

Some examples of techniques:
- Novelists—figurative language, characterization, etc.
- Journalists—quotes, photographs
- Filmmakers—lighting, musical score

Synthesize Ideas from Multiple Texts (Approaching Texts as a Researcher): Relationships in Texts

| 7.RL.3.B | Compare and contrast a fictional portrayal of a time, place or character with realistic accounts of the same subject matter. |

Text’s Form/Structure
The internal organization of literary or informational texts.

Authors of informational texts use a structure that best conveys information or ideas. A nonfiction text can have one overall text structure or several different text structures. Examples of types of text structure include sequential, problem/solution, cause/effect, description, compare/contrast and classification.

Informational text example: A social studies textbook chapter may be written in chronological order but may contain a paragraph that explains a cause-and-effect relationship within that chronology.

Speaking and Listening

Collaborating: Conversation

| 7.SL.1.A | Follow rules for collegial discussions and decision-making, track progress toward specific goals and deadlines, and define individual roles as needed. |  |  |

Updated 4/3/2020
Collaborating: Questioning

7.SL.1.B
Delineate a speaker’s argument and claims, evaluating reasoning in order to pose questions that elicit elaboration and respond to others’ questions and comments with relevant observations and ideas that bring the discussion back on topic as needed.

Collaborating: Viewpoints of Others

7.SL.1.C
Acknowledge new information expressed by others including those presented in diverse media and, when warranted, modify their own views.

- Diverse Media
  - Diverse media in the Speaking and Listening strand refers to media that require listening. They contain an auditory component such as oral presentations, live discussions or performances as well as video or auditory recordings.

  - A student listens to a recorded excerpt of a debate between presidential candidates followed by watching an excerpt from a televised newscast about the debate. Based on what the student heard in the sound recording of the debate and the newscast about the debate, the student listens for media bias in the newscast.

Presenting: Verbal Delivery

7.SL.2.A
Speak clearly, audibly and to the point, using conventions of language as appropriate to task, purpose and audience when presenting including appropriate volume and at an understandable pace.

- Conventions of Language as Appropriate to Task
  - Conventions of language when speaking means a standard way to express oneself in a manner that meets people’s expectations and helps ensure spoken utterances are:

  - We commonly agree that in most cases a “sentence” in speaking consists of a complete thought and that it will have certain parts (at minimum a subject and a verb). The choice of whether to speak using a particular dialect, to include slang or jargon or to strictly adhere to conventions of standard English should be considered based on the audience and purpose/task.

Conventions of language are critical to ensure the spoken message conveys the same as what the listener understands. Note: There are times when standard conventions might be deliberately ignored to bring about a desired effect or better address the needs of the audience.
