There are so many people who helped with this project. First, it would not have been possible without the hundreds of children who let us play games with them to find out their knowledge about so many things. And, we would like to thank the many directors, teachers and providers who let us ask them questions and observe in their classrooms and child care homes, and, finally, we appreciate the parents who allowed us to pry into their lives. Without the cooperation of all of these folks we could not have learned all we did about children, families, and programs. We now know more about our early childhood system in Missouri because of their cooperation. We will be always grateful to each and every one of them.

And, of course, without the many professionals who worked on this project, it would not have happened. We would like to express our appreciation to all of them – those who helped coordinate the training of assessors, data collection, data entry, data analysis, report writing, proofing, and formatting.
